

Information sheet no. 10

Melbourne, Australia 9 – 14 September, 2007

CCD FORUM

With Colony Collapse Disorder (CCD) causing severe losses of bee colonies in the USA, and in the UK and Europe there being loss of hives which is commonly referred to as Marie Celeste hives, the Organising Committee for Apimondia 2007 has decided to hold a forum on CCD at Apimondia.

Apimondia 2007 in Melbourne, Australia is an excellent opportunity for scientists from around the world to come together and compare notes and ideas. It also gives beekeepers an opportunity to talk with one another and the scientists to find out the latest on CCD.

So as to avail yourself of the opportunity of being part of this forum, please register on our website www.apimondia2007.com if you have not done so already. The earlybird rate has been extended to 15 June so take this opportunity to come and learn.

Trevor Weatherhead (Organising Committee) queenbee@gil.com.au

If you no longer wish to receive these information sheets, please contact Trevor Weatherhead at the email address above.